

Contents

Introduction	1
True Price : True Income Rudolf Steiner's path to a full and dignified income for everyone.	4
Contextualising 'True Pricing' The history of the 'true price' idea and the prospects for its realization in today's world.	18
True Pricing instead of Basic Income Overcoming today's generally insufficient income, presupposes the separation of labour and income, leading to true pricing rather than basic income.	28
Towards True Pricing True pricing entails rethinking economics and understanding accounting as an instrument for the perception of price.	35
True Pricing and the Role of Associations Practical implementation of Rudolf Steiner's true price formula calls specifically for what he calls 'associations'.	41
Consciously Regulated Markets and Consumer Organisations Discussion of 'associations' in both general terms and in the case of local organic food distribution.	48
Can a Share Company act Associatively? Do associations already exist, albeit differently named, and are share companies an example?	54
Contributors	63